Dear Parents

As I am sure you will be aware, today is, sadly, my last day as Headteacher at Greenfields. You will know that this has been an incredibly hard decision for me to make but I know that it is the right one.

It has been an absolute privilege and a joy to have been Headteacher here for the last (nearly!) twenty years. Working with such amazing families and children in the middle of the incredible community that is The Meadows has been a real pleasure.

Over the years, I have got to know some extraordinary people in our community, have had the pleasure of working with some great staff and have taught over 1000 incredible children.

I know that I am leaving Greenfields in very safe hands with Mrs Maltby taking over as Headteacher in September and all of our amazing staff who will all ensure that Greenfields continues to be the very special place that it is.

Thank you for all of your support for the school over the years – it has been hugely appreciated and, on a personal level, has meant so much. Together, as a community, we have shown how we can build a truly outstanding school.

Hopefully, I will see you all again at some point but, until then, look after each other and look after our incredible children and make sure that The Meadows remains such a strong, positive community.

Have a great Summer,

Take care,

Terry Smith
